

WORSE AND WORSE.

The Cholera in Spain.

MADRID, July 30.—The number of new cases of cholera throughout Spain on Tuesday was 2,316, and the number of deaths from the disease 855. The cholera is not only increasing in the poorer quarters of this city, but is making its way into the better quarters of the capital, which have heretofore been exempt. King Alfonso has intimated that if the cholera continues to spread in Madrid he will return to that city.

MADRID, July 30.—In the whole of Spain yesterday there were reported 3,168 new cases of cholera, and 1,252 deaths.

MADRID, July 31.—The thunder storms prevailing here are largely increasing the cholera mortality. There were 2,416 new cases of cholera in the plague-stricken districts yesterday, and 1,639 deaths from the disease for the same time.

MADRID, August 1.—In the forty-eight hours ending on Friday, sixty-nine new cases of cholera and forty-one deaths were reported in Madrid. Thirty-one of the victims were women. Seventy bodies lay unburied in a cemetery outside the town yesterday, the police carous around in the infected houses preventing the people from obtaining burial licenses. The lower classes manifest the greatest hostility to the official doctors and ambulance bearers. The epidemic is spreading to all the northern provinces.

The number of new cases of cholera throughout Spain yesterday was 2,019, and of deaths from the disease, 819. In the city of Madrid twenty-eight new cases and fourteen deaths have been reported to-day, and in the province of Madrid outside of the city forty new cases and fourteen deaths.

THE CHOLERA RAVAGES COUNTRY.

Of all the provinces of Spain only fourteen are free from cholera, which visited eight new provinces last week. Refugees are swarming over the Pyrenees, disarming the French, who are doing all that is possible to prevent the invasion by enforcing quarantines and confiscating baggage by the wholesale. The suffering in rural Spain is heart-rending. From Marseilles there is a report that it is the medical belief that numerous places are infected, but there is a grand conspiracy of suppression and silence. The physicians are rounding the hours before the outbreak in the South of France becomes too serious to be concealed.

The rebellion in the Republic of Columbia, Central America, after months of bitter and costly warfare, has been crushed by the arrest of Prestan and Canargo, the leaders.

Col. Fred D. Grant with his characteristic smartness has notified himself by rushing into print to invite his father's Cabinet to attend the funeral obsequies, to be held in New York on the 8th.

The Paducah Standard intimates that Judge J. M. Bigler, of Paducah, will again be a candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, in the event the Legislature authorizes the continuance of the court.

Robt. Bonner, the owner of Maud S., intends to try during the present season to make the "Queen of the Turf" still further lower her record to 2:08 or 2:07, after which she will be permanently retired.

The community of Ocala, Fla., is all excited over the marriage of Thos. D. Prentiss, aged 24, to Mrs. Annie M. Butti, aged 80 years, having been two months. The bride's former husband left her an estate worth $200,000.

The Richmond Register credits a clipping from this paper to the Hopkinton Republican. In the language of the Judge and Major in "Kit," "You don't know us." Be more careful in the future, Tipton, and the past will be forgiven.

Col. Jas. A. Munday, of Owensboro, has secured the post at Vancouver, Washington Territory, for which he was an applicant. It pays him a salary of $1,500 with a subsistence allowance of $3 a day and actual expenses when in the field.

The President made the following appointments to be made Consuls of the United States: Alexander H. Shipley, of New York, at Auckland; J. L. McCaskill, of Mississippi, at Dublin; Joseph Falkenbach, of Ohio, at Bremen; James Whelan, of New York, at Fort Erie, Canada.

Rev. Sam Jones was at the High Bridge camp meeting, near Lexington, last week and with his characteristic enterprise the Courier-Journal furnished short-hand reports of his sermons daily. The evangelist will go from High Bridge on a southern tour and return to this city the first of next month.

Col. Thos. L. Jones intimates that he will run for Governor of Kentucky if he is not given the Spanish of Austrian Mission. The courtly colonel wants an office bad and we hope the President will give him something worthy of his desert. He has been a little unfortunate in his races for Governor, but there is no sounder Democrat in the State than Col. Jones.

GEN. GRANT'S FUNERAL.

Aug. 8th the Time and Riverside Park, New York, the Burial Place.

THE PALL-BEARERS NAMED.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—President Cleveland has been in communication with Mrs. Grant respecting the selection of pall-bearers for Gen. Grant's remains. Upon reception of a request that he make a selection, the President immediately telegraphed Mrs. Grant for any suggestion that she might desire to offer, and Mrs. Grant replied that if prominent Union Generals, including Sherman and Sheridan, should be selected, she desired that some prominent General who served in the confederate army should also be invited to act as one of the bearers. The President has appointed the following:

Gen. Wm. T. Sherman, Lieut. Gen. Philip H. Sheridan, Admiral David D. Porter, Vice Admiral Stephen C. Rowan, Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, of Virginia, Gen. Simon B. Buckner, of Kentucky, Hamilton Fish, of New York, George S. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, George W. Childs, of Pennsylvania, Jno. A. Logan, of Illinois, Geo. Jones, of New York, Oliver Hoyt, of New York.

THE NEW YORK MEMORIAL.

New York, July 30.—The Monument Executive Committee met in Mayor Grant's office this afternoon. Letters were read in sympathy with the movement. A check for $1,000 was received from George Elbert and smaller amounts from other sources. The following memorial was issued to the people of the United States:

"The family of Gen. Grant having chosen New York as his final resting place, the Mayor and people of that city desire that a great National monument shall be erected which will fitly honor his memory. To promote this object the Mayor of New York has designated a local committee to inaugurate a movement to procure the necessary funds. In due time appropriate action will be taken for the organization of committees, which shall represent the entire country. Pending these formal proceedings, we are directed to invite the people of the United States to participate in the erection of a suitable memorial in honor of General Grant, by the contribution of such sums as they may feel able and willing to devote to this great purpose. All newspapers, railways, telegraph and express companies, post-masters, banks, bankers, church and municipal authorities, commercial bodies, and exchanges, manufacturing and business are respectfully solicited to cooperate in the immediate collection of contributions to be forwarded to Drexel, Morgan & Co. New York, for this committee, or to the Mayor of New York, so that our people may have an opportunity of contributing to this last tribute to the memory of the illustrious dead. Certificates of acknowledgment will be sent to each contributor of funds from any source."

CHESTER A. ARTHUR, WILLIAM R. GRACE, HAMILTON FISH, R. T. GREENER.

THE BODY EMBALMED.

MT. MCGREGG, Aug. 1.—The leaden hue about Gen. Grant's face yesterday was owing largely, the undertakers say, to the unfavorable lights and shadows of the room in which the body lay. Late last night when the casket was opened the body gave forth to the senses no evidence of other than favorable conditions. Preparations are being used to remove the heavy dark circle beneath the eyes. The remains have been examined within twelve hours and the extremities and limbs were found to be fully under the control of the embalming preparations. Undertaker Merritt believes the body will be preserved in a most excellent condition until long after the final leave shall have been taken of it.

It is said that copies of his late venomous sheet have been filed against Capt. A. A. Murphy, now superintendent of the Government building at Frankfort, to prove that he is a partisan of the most offensive and disgusting sort. He not only published the scandalous set aloft on Mr. Cleveland during the canvass but in editorials denounced him in every conceivable way. If the Capt. had as much self respect as he has venom he would not have waited to be kicked out of office under a man guilty of as many crimes as he led his readers to believe Mr. Cleveland was. Murphy should go and not be allowed to observe the order of his going.—Interior Journal.

Who dreamed twenty years ago that Gen. Joseph E. Johnston and Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner would be pall-bearers at the funeral of Gen. U. S. Grant? Yet the fact has come to pass and the whole country will approve of Mrs. Grant's suggestion and President Cleveland's action in the premises. Buckner and Joo Johnston are, with the single exception of Beauregard, the only surviving Generals who ever commanded an army against Grant. Lee, Albert Sidney Johnston, Bragg and Pemberton, against whom Grant fought most of his campaigns, are all dead. With the death of Grant, none of the commanders of the great Army of the Potomac remains, except George B. McClellan, Scott, McDowell, Halleck, Burnside, Hooker, Meade, and now Grant, have one by one "crossed the river." How few of the leaders in the great struggle are alive! Sherman, Sheridan, Johnston, Beauregard, McClellan, Buell, Longstreet, Rosecrans are the most prominent who still survive.

Maud S. Beats Her Record and Trets a Mile in 2:08 3/4.

CLEVELAND, O., July 30.—Maud S., the peerless queen of the turf, earned her promised retirement at Glenville track to-day, beating her record by a full half-second amid cheers and the wildest applause of 20,000 people. She was brought out about 5 p. m., and was given a "warning heat," which she made in 2:29. Then a heat of the 2:30 class was had while Maud S. was getting her wind for her great effort.

She was driven to the three-quarter turn and brought down the stretch at a good jog, and when the word was given to go she fairly leaped into the air, seeming to fly upon wings instead of hoofs. She reached the quarter pole in splendid shape, but here she broke all to pieces, and had to be reduced to a walk to bring her down. Hair brought her back, and as she passed the grand stand she seemed to act as if she was ashamed of herself.

Another start was made, and the beautiful mare shot under the wire like a rocket. She preserved this gait all the way round, coming in with eyes flashing and her breath snorting victory. The shingle was displayed from the judges' stand bearing the astonishing figures, "2:08 3/4." A terrific shout went up and a thousand voices screamed, "She's done it."

The Election.

The election in the city yesterday was very quiet although a good vote was polled. At the time of going to press the indications were that Brethitt's majority over Richardson would not fall far short of 500 in the city. Meager returns from the county indicate Brethitt's election by several hundred majority. Fox for State Treasurer will get a very light vote. In the city the vote was nearly solid for calling a Constitutional Convention.

KENTUCKY KNOWLEDGE.

Gov. Knott is spending the week at Crab Orchard Springs.

Kentucky has a river frontage of 813 miles.

A Mason county farmer had 11 fine Cotswold sheep killed by lightning.

A Nicholas county farmer had an entire flock of sheep killed by dogs in one night.

The fourth annual reunion of the First Kentucky Brigade, C. S. A., will be held at Glasgow, August 19.

Mat White, a farm hand in Lyon county, killed himself by taking an overdose of morphine.

The wife of Sam Nicholl, col., was burned to death in Warren county by the explosion of a coal oil lamp.

Nine convicts escaped from camp near Mt. Vernon, while at work on a railroad last week. Three were recaptured.

Joe Bishop was accidentally shot by a younger brother while handling a pistol, at Williamstown. He was 18 years old.

Albert Duvall, col., was killed by a bucket of mud falling on him while he was cleaning out a well in Cloverport.

Win. Hall suicided at Rockport, Ind., by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He was 38 years old and married.

Rev. John C. Young, a prominent preacher engaged in a camp meeting at High Bridge, committed suicide by taking laudanum, Wednesday.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—Yesterday the wife of Craig Tolliver, the Iowan county, Ky., faction warrior, who is confined in the jail of this county on a charge of robbing his mother-in-law, filed a suit for divorce from him. She says that they were married October 13, 1874, at Montgomery, Ohio, and have two children, aged ten and eight years. She says that for more than three years he has failed to provide for her, and she has been compelled to live upon the charity of friends and her own exertions.

This is the first time they have been able to get service on him, and is probably the reason for the filing of the suit now.

General Grant.

"When Grant was in Chicago, three or four years ago," said an army official, "he lounged about Sheridan's headquarters a good deal. His son Fred was at that time on Sheridan's staff, but was absent one day, and Grant took his place at Fred's desk and looked after the business. A nervous, fidgety, irritable old fellow came in to inquire for some paper that he had left with Fred. When he stated his case, Grant took up the matter in a systematic way, and proceeded in the manner of an over-anxious clerk to look the paper up. The document could not be found, and Grant, apologizing, walked with the old gentleman to the door. As I walked down the stairs with the mollified visitor, he turned and asked: 'Who is that old codger? He is the politest clerk I ever saw at military headquarters. I hope Sheridan will keep him.' I answered, quietly, 'That is General Grant.' The fidgety old gentleman, after staring at me for a full minute, said, with considerable fervor: 'I will give you fifty cents if you will kick me down stairs.'—Albany Evening Journal.

The latest Englishman who has written a book on America, Mr. A. S. Hill, was amused to see in the wall-paper of the Minneapolis station this inscription posted conspicuously on the wall: "Gentlemen will not to spit on the floor." The admonition seems, however, to have received but little attention. In a hotel in the same city—a small and very unclean one it is said to have been—this notice was posted over the jack-towel hanging for the convenience of those who wished to prepare themselves for dinner: "You are requested to wash before you wipe."—N. Y. Post.

THE STANDARD DOLLAR.

Some of the Remedies Which Ridicule Its Fair Proportions.

Morgan, the English engraver of the die for the standard "buzzard" dollar, animated perhaps by an ambition similar to that of the youth who fired the Ephesian dome, smuggled into his work in two places the initial letter of his surname. Although microscopic in size, these "M's" are plainly discernible on the coin even to the naked eye after a careful search. An employed Wall street man discovered one of the letters, and started among his acquaintances the following puzzle: "Find three M's on the standard dollar." Two were readily found—one in the word "union" and another in "America," but the third was not so easily found. An interview with Chief Drummond of the United States Secret Service, showed that there were four M's instead of three, and the fourth, hitherto unnoticed even by Wall street men, was pointed out to the reporter. Mr. Drummond laughed when his attention was called to the matter, and said: "The presence of these extra letters on the standard dollar was first brought to my notice by one of my clerks. They were of course cut in the die by Morgan." The chief of the Secret Service acknowledged that they had not escaped the attention of the counterfeiter, who had placed them on the false coins.

Similar instances of the mutilation of dies are recalled in the case of English and French engravers' work. When the artist to the English mint, many years ago, placed on the plate of a postage stamp a "W" on so minute a character that for years the stamp circulated without a doubt of its perfection. The eventual discovery of the blunder created a sensation in England; the objectionable addition to the work was promptly erased, and a stringent law passed against the commission of a like offense. In the reign of Napoleon III. an engraver placed the initial letter of his surname on the plate of a stamp. This also was of such microscopic dimensions that it escaped detection for a long time. The discovery of the fact led to the same result as in the English case.—N. Y. Tribune.

A WOMAN'S IDEA OF IT.

Love, Partnership and Marriage, According to a London Lecturer's Notion.

An American woman has been lecturing in London on love, partnership and marriage. Her views concerning the amount of conjugal happiness are highly pessimistic. Estimating that every third married couple is thoroughly miserable, she declares the cause of this state of things to be the social prohibition against proposal of marriage by the woman. It appears to her hardly fair that man should monopolize the privilege of selecting a partner for life, and she deplores the restriction that condemns a girl to silence while he on whom she has fixed her young affections goes around courting other girls. The lecturer's constant use of the word "lady" amused her and once, especially when she told of the "lady" who was unhappy in her marriage but out of successful as a market gardener. Her notion of domestic happiness is this: A pleasant room, a bright fire, a comfortable cat and dog, rosy-cheeked children and prettily dressed mother, with sewing in hand. To these enter the husband, tired with his day's work, and happy to be at home. He throws himself in a comfortable arm chair, in an attitude of careless repose, while he completes by placing his feet upon his wife's knees.—London Truth.

Joe Selfow, aged 12, was shot and killed by his brother Hugh, aged 14 years, at Milledaleburg, near Danville.

Joe Bishop was accidentally shot by a younger brother while handling a pistol, at Williamstown. He was 18 years old.

Albert Duvall, col., was killed by a bucket of mud falling on him while he was cleaning out a well in Cloverport.

Win. Hall suicided at Rockport, Ind., by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He was 38 years old and married.

Rev. John C. Young, a prominent preacher engaged in a camp meeting at High Bridge, committed suicide by taking laudanum, Wednesday.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—Yesterday the wife of Craig Tolliver, the Iowan county, Ky., faction warrior, who is confined in the jail of this county on a charge of robbing his mother-in-law, filed a suit for divorce from him. She says that they were married October 13, 1874, at Montgomery, Ohio, and have two children, aged ten and eight years. She says that for more than three years he has failed to provide for her, and she has been compelled to live upon the charity of friends and her own exertions.

This is the first time they have been able to get service on him, and is probably the reason for the filing of the suit now.

General Grant.

"When Grant was in Chicago, three or four years ago," said an army official, "he lounged about Sheridan's headquarters a good deal. His son Fred was at that time on Sheridan's staff, but was absent one day, and Grant took his place at Fred's desk and looked after the business. A nervous, fidgety, irritable old fellow came in to inquire for some paper that he had left with Fred. When he stated his case, Grant took up the matter in a systematic way, and proceeded in the manner of an over-anxious clerk to look the paper up. The document could not be found, and Grant, apologizing, walked with the old gentleman to the door. As I walked down the stairs with the mollified visitor, he turned and asked: 'Who is that old codger? He is the politest clerk I ever saw at military headquarters. I hope Sheridan will keep him.' I answered, quietly, 'That is General Grant.' The fidgety old gentleman, after staring at me for a full minute, said, with considerable fervor: 'I will give you fifty cents if you will kick me down stairs.'—Albany Evening Journal.

The latest Englishman who has written a book on America, Mr. A. S. Hill, was amused to see in the wall-paper of the Minneapolis station this inscription posted conspicuously on the wall: "Gentlemen will not to spit on the floor." The admonition seems, however, to have received but little attention. In a hotel in the same city—a small and very unclean one it is said to have been—this notice was posted over the jack-towel hanging for the convenience of those who wished to prepare themselves for dinner: "You are requested to wash before you wipe."—N. Y. Post.

THE STANDARD DOLLAR.

Some of the Remedies Which Ridicule Its Fair Proportions.

Morgan, the English engraver of the die for the standard "buzzard" dollar, animated perhaps by an ambition similar to that of the youth who fired the Ephesian dome, smuggled into his work in two places the initial letter of his surname. Although microscopic in size, these "M's" are plainly discernible on the coin even to the naked eye after a careful search. An employed Wall street man discovered one of the letters, and started among his acquaintances the following puzzle: "Find three M's on the standard dollar." Two were readily found—one in the word "union" and another in "America," but the third was not so easily found. An interview with Chief Drummond of the United States Secret Service, showed that there were four M's instead of three, and the fourth, hitherto unnoticed even by Wall street men, was pointed out to the reporter. Mr. Drummond laughed when his attention was called to the matter, and said: "The presence of these extra letters on the standard dollar was first brought to my notice by one of my clerks. They were of course cut in the die by Morgan." The chief of the Secret Service acknowledged that they had not escaped the attention of the counterfeiter, who had placed them on the false coins.

Similar instances of the mutilation of dies are recalled in the case of English and French engravers' work. When the artist to the English mint, many years ago, placed on the plate of a postage stamp a "W" on so minute a character that for years the stamp circulated without a doubt of its perfection. The eventual discovery of the blunder created a sensation in England; the objectionable addition to the work was promptly erased, and a stringent law passed against the commission of a like offense. In the reign of Napoleon III. an engraver placed the initial letter of his surname on the plate of a stamp. This also was of such microscopic dimensions that it escaped detection for a long time. The discovery of the fact led to the same result as in the English case.—N. Y. Tribune.

A WOMAN'S IDEA OF IT.

Love, Partnership and Marriage, According to a London Lecturer's Notion.

An American woman has been lecturing in London on love, partnership and marriage. Her views concerning the amount of conjugal happiness are highly pessimistic. Estimating that every third married couple is thoroughly miserable, she declares the cause of this state of things to be the social prohibition against proposal of marriage by the woman. It appears to her hardly fair that man should monopolize the privilege of selecting a partner for life, and she deplores the restriction that condemns a girl to silence while he on whom she has fixed her young affections goes around courting other girls. The lecturer's constant use of the word "lady" amused her and once, especially when she told of the "lady" who was unhappy in her marriage but out of successful as a market gardener. Her notion of domestic happiness is this: A pleasant room, a bright fire, a comfortable cat and dog, rosy-cheeked children and prettily dressed mother, with sewing in hand. To these enter the husband, tired with his day's work, and happy to be at home. He throws himself in a comfortable arm chair, in an attitude of careless repose, while he completes by placing his feet upon his wife's knees.—London Truth.

Joe Selfow, aged 12, was shot and killed by his brother Hugh, aged 14 years, at Milledaleburg, near Danville.

Joe Bishop was accidentally shot by a younger brother while handling a pistol, at Williamstown. He was 18 years old.

Albert Duvall, col., was killed by a bucket of mud falling on him while he was cleaning out a well in Cloverport.

Win. Hall suicided at Rockport, Ind., by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He was 38 years old and married.

Rev. John C. Young, a prominent preacher engaged in a camp meeting at High Bridge, committed suicide by taking laudanum, Wednesday.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—Yesterday the wife of Craig Tolliver, the Iowan county, Ky., faction warrior, who is confined in the jail of this county on a charge of robbing his mother-in-law, filed a suit for divorce from him. She says that they were married October 13, 1874, at Montgomery, Ohio, and have two children, aged ten and eight years. She says that for more than three years he has failed to provide for her, and she has been compelled to live upon the charity of friends and her own exertions.

This is the first time they have been able to get service on him, and is probably the reason for the filing of the suit now.

General Grant.

"When Grant was in Chicago, three or four years ago," said an army official, "he lounged about Sheridan's headquarters a good deal. His son Fred was at that time on Sheridan's staff, but was absent one day, and Grant took his place at Fred's desk and looked after the business. A nervous, fidgety, irritable old fellow came in to inquire for some paper that he had left with Fred. When he stated his case, Grant took up the matter in a systematic way, and proceeded in the manner of an over-anxious clerk to look the paper up. The document could not be found, and Grant, apologizing, walked with the old gentleman to the door. As I walked down the stairs with the mollified visitor, he turned and asked: 'Who is that old codger? He is the politest clerk I ever saw at military headquarters. I hope Sheridan will keep him.' I answered, quietly, 'That is General Grant.' The fidgety old gentleman, after staring at me for a full minute, said, with considerable fervor: 'I will give you fifty cents if you will kick me down stairs.'—Albany Evening Journal.

The latest Englishman who has written a book on America, Mr. A. S. Hill, was amused to see in the wall-paper of the Minneapolis station this inscription posted conspicuously on the wall: "Gentlemen will not to spit on the floor." The admonition seems, however, to have received but little attention. In a hotel in the same city—a small and very unclean one it is said to have been—this notice was posted over the jack-towel hanging for the convenience of those who wished to prepare themselves for dinner: "You are requested to wash before you wipe."—N. Y. Post.

THE STANDARD DOLLAR.

Some of the Remedies Which Ridicule Its Fair Proportions.

Morgan, the English engraver of the die for the standard "buzzard" dollar, animated perhaps by an ambition similar to that of the youth who fired the Ephesian dome, smuggled into his work in two places the initial letter of his surname. Although microscopic in size, these "M's" are plainly discernible on the coin even to the naked eye after a careful search. An employed Wall street man discovered one of the letters, and started among his acquaintances the following puzzle: "Find three M's on the standard dollar." Two were readily found—one in the word "union" and another in "America," but the third was not so easily found. An interview with Chief Drummond of the United States Secret Service, showed that there were four M's instead of three, and the fourth, hitherto unnoticed even by Wall street men, was pointed out to the reporter. Mr. Drummond laughed when his attention was called to the matter, and said: "The presence of these extra letters on the standard dollar was first brought to my notice by one of my clerks. They were of course cut in the die by Morgan." The chief of the Secret Service acknowledged that they had not escaped the attention of the counterfeiter, who had placed them on the false coins.

Similar instances of the mutilation of dies are recalled in the case of English and French engravers' work. When the artist to the English mint, many years ago, placed on the plate of a postage stamp a "W" on so minute a character that for years the stamp circulated without a doubt of its perfection. The eventual discovery of the blunder created a sensation in England; the objectionable addition to the work was promptly erased, and a stringent law passed against the commission of a like offense. In the reign of Napoleon III. an engraver placed the initial letter of his surname on the plate of a stamp. This also was of such microscopic dimensions that it escaped detection for a long time. The discovery of the fact led to the same result as in the English case.—N. Y. Tribune.

A WOMAN'S IDEA OF IT.

Love, Partnership and Marriage, According to a London Lecturer's Notion.

An American woman has been lecturing in London on love, partnership and marriage. Her views concerning the amount of conjugal happiness are highly pessimistic. Estimating that every third married couple is thoroughly miserable, she declares the cause of this state of things to be the social prohibition against proposal of marriage by the woman. It appears to her hardly fair that man should monopolize the privilege of selecting a partner for life, and she deplores the restriction that condemns a girl to silence while he on whom she has fixed her young affections goes around courting other girls. The lecturer's constant use of the word "lady" amused her and once, especially when she told of the "lady" who was unhappy in her marriage but out of successful as a market gardener. Her notion of domestic happiness is this: A pleasant room, a bright fire, a comfortable cat and dog, rosy-cheeked children and prettily dressed mother, with sewing in hand. To these enter the husband, tired with his day's work, and happy to be at home. He throws himself in a comfortable arm chair, in an attitude of careless repose, while he completes by placing his feet upon his wife's knees.—London Truth.

Joe Selfow, aged 12, was shot and killed by his brother Hugh, aged 14 years, at Milledaleburg, near Danville.

Joe Bishop was accidentally shot by a younger brother while handling a pistol, at Williamstown. He was 18 years old.

Albert Duvall, col., was killed by a bucket of mud falling on him while he was cleaning out a well in Cloverport.

Win. Hall suicided at Rockport, Ind., by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He was 38 years old and married.

Rev. John C. Young, a prominent preacher engaged in a camp meeting at High Bridge, committed suicide by taking laudanum, Wednesday.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—Yesterday the wife of Craig Tolliver, the Iowan county, Ky., faction warrior, who is confined in the jail of this county on a charge of robbing his mother-in-law, filed a suit for divorce from him. She says that they were married October 13, 1874, at Montgomery, Ohio, and have two children, aged ten and eight years. She says that for more than three years he has failed to provide for her, and she has been compelled to live upon the charity of friends and her own exertions.

This is the first time they have been able to get service on him, and is probably the reason for the filing of the suit now.

General Grant.

"When Grant was in Chicago, three or four years ago," said an army official, "he lounged about Sheridan's headquarters a good deal. His son Fred was at that time on Sheridan's staff, but was absent one day, and Grant took his place at Fred's desk and looked after the business. A nervous, fidgety, irritable old fellow came in to inquire for some paper that he had left with Fred. When he stated his case, Grant took up the matter in a systematic way, and proceeded in the manner of an over-anxious clerk to look the paper up. The document could not be found, and Grant, apologizing, walked with the old gentleman to the door. As I walked down the stairs with the mollified visitor, he turned and asked: 'Who is that old codger? He is the politest clerk I ever saw at military headquarters. I hope Sheridan will keep him.' I answered, quietly, 'That is General Grant.' The fidgety old gentleman, after staring at me for a full minute, said, with considerable fervor: 'I will give you fifty cents if you will kick me down stairs.'—Albany Evening Journal.

The latest Englishman who has written a book on America, Mr. A. S. Hill, was amused to see in the wall-paper of the Minneapolis station this inscription posted conspicuously on the wall: "Gentlemen will not to spit on the floor." The admonition seems, however, to have received but little attention. In a hotel in the same city—a small and very unclean one it is said to have been—this notice was posted over the jack-towel hanging for the convenience of those who wished to prepare themselves for dinner: "You are requested to wash before you wipe."—N. Y. Post.

THE STANDARD DOLLAR.

Some of the Remedies Which Ridicule Its Fair Proportions.

Morgan, the English engraver of the die for the standard "buzzard" dollar, animated perhaps by an ambition similar to that of the youth who fired the Ephesian dome, smuggled into his work in two places the initial letter of his surname. Although microscopic in size, these "M's" are plainly discernible on the coin even to the naked eye after a careful search. An employed Wall street man discovered one of the letters, and started among his acquaintances the following puzzle: "Find three M's on the standard dollar." Two were readily found—one in the word "union" and another in "America," but the third was not so easily found. An interview with Chief Drummond of the United States Secret Service, showed that there were four M's instead of three, and the fourth, hitherto unnoticed even by Wall street men, was pointed out to the reporter. Mr. Drummond laughed when his attention was called to the matter, and said: "The presence of these extra letters on the standard dollar was first brought to my notice by one of my clerks. They were of course cut in the die by Morgan." The chief of the Secret Service acknowledged that they had not escaped the attention of the counterfeiter, who had placed them on the false coins.

Similar instances of the mutilation of dies are recalled in the case of English and French engravers' work. When the artist to the English mint, many years ago, placed on the plate of a postage stamp a "W" on so minute a character that for years the stamp circulated without a doubt of its perfection. The eventual discovery of the blunder created a sensation in England; the objectionable addition to the work was promptly erased, and a stringent law passed against the commission of a like offense. In the reign of Napoleon III. an engraver placed the initial letter of his surname on the plate of a stamp. This also was of such microscopic dimensions that it escaped detection for a long time. The discovery of the fact led to the same result as in the English case.—N. Y. Tribune.

A WOMAN'S IDEA OF IT.

Love, Partnership and Marriage, According to a London Lecturer's Notion.

An American woman has been lecturing in London on love, partnership and marriage. Her views concerning the amount of conjugal happiness are highly pessimistic. Estimating that every third married couple is thoroughly miserable, she declares the cause of this state of things to be the social prohibition against proposal of marriage by the woman. It appears to her hardly fair that man should monopolize the privilege of selecting a partner for life, and she deplores the restriction that condemns a girl to silence while he on whom she has fixed her young affections goes around courting other girls. The lecturer's constant use of the word "lady" amused her and once, especially when she told of the "lady" who was unhappy in her marriage but out of successful as a market gardener. Her notion of domestic happiness is this: A pleasant room, a bright fire, a comfortable cat and dog, rosy-cheeked children and prettily dressed mother, with sewing in hand. To these enter the husband, tired with his day's work, and happy to be at home. He throws himself in a comfortable arm chair, in an attitude of careless repose, while he completes by placing his feet upon his wife's knees.—London Truth.

Joe Selfow, aged 12, was shot and killed by his brother Hugh, aged 14 years, at Milledaleburg, near Danville.

Joe Bishop was accidentally shot by a younger brother while handling a pistol, at Williamstown. He was 18 years old.

Albert Duvall, col., was killed by a bucket of mud falling on him while he was cleaning out a well in Cloverport.

Win. Hall suicided at Rockport, Ind., by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He was 38 years old and married.

Rev. John C. Young, a prominent preacher engaged in a camp meeting at High Bridge, committed suicide by taking laudanum, Wednesday.

CINCINNATI

